Looked at different aspects

Technical User Company

Looked at different aspects

- Every change by development
- Development has to maintain all versions
- Development has to determine which version on which page

- Wish to buy for multiple people at once
- Analyse each package separate; don't understand they build up
- Want an easy proces (no clutter, less congitive load) to understand the packages

- Wish to sell multiple products at once
- Wish to sell for multiple people at once
- Focus on Standaard package

A new application needed

- New application that adresses all the issues and desires
- Upgrade-model instead of comparisonmodel
- Based on simplicity

Low-cost validation

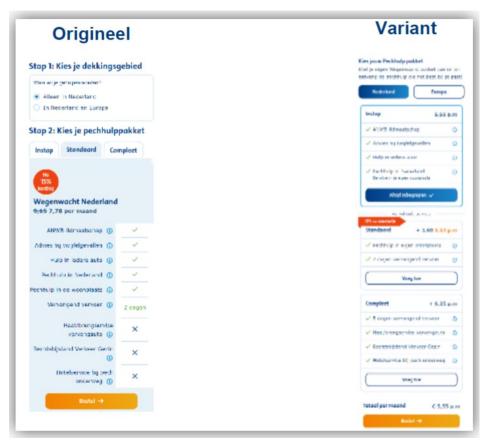

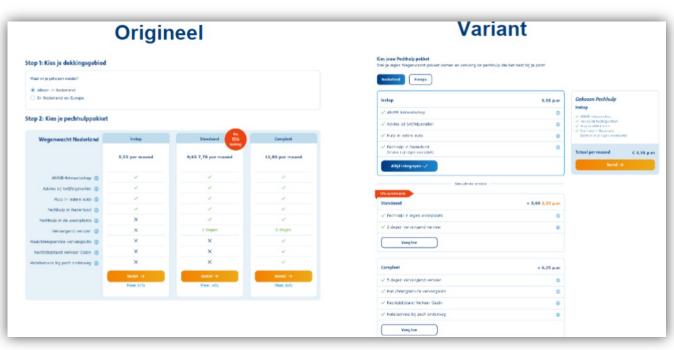

- Hard-coded set-up in testing tool.
- #transaction
- Share of Standaard

"If we use an upgrade-model instead of a compare-model, the number of transactions won't decrease."

"If we use an upgrade-model instead of a compare-model, the share of Standaard won't decrease."

Desktop

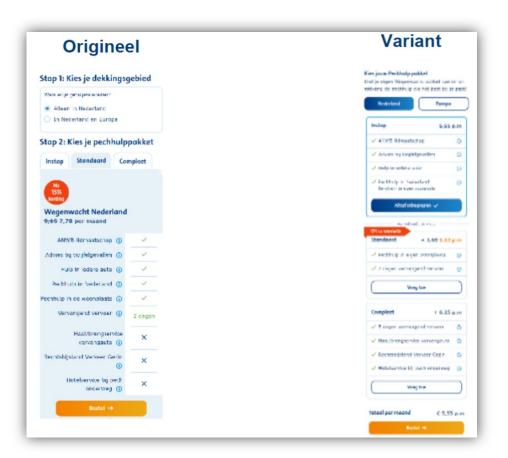

Mobile

No difference in number of transactions

- Using a z-test
- Laughing at self-from-last-year? Achieved!

Unwanted switch in type of packages

But is this significant?

- Laughing at self-from-last-year? Achieved!

Unwanted switch in type of packages

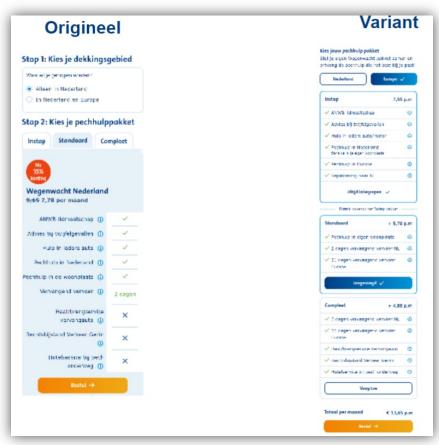

- But is this significant?
- First time using chi-squared test > significant difference

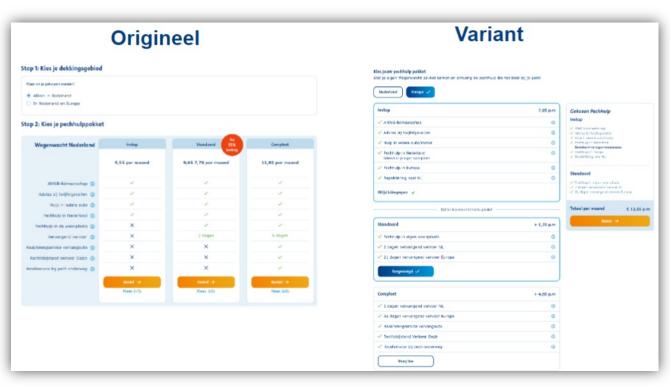

Iteration needed

Second experiment

Mobile

Second experiment

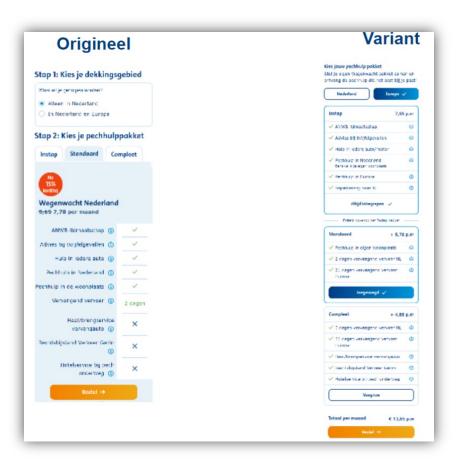

No difference in number of transactions

Using a z-test

Small switch in type of packages

But not on Standaard

Almost same result, but much more possibilities and flexibility.

Second experiment

New application, new ideas

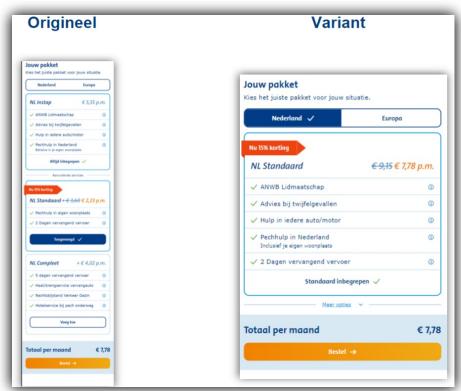

Our UX-designer asked himself these questions and got inspired:

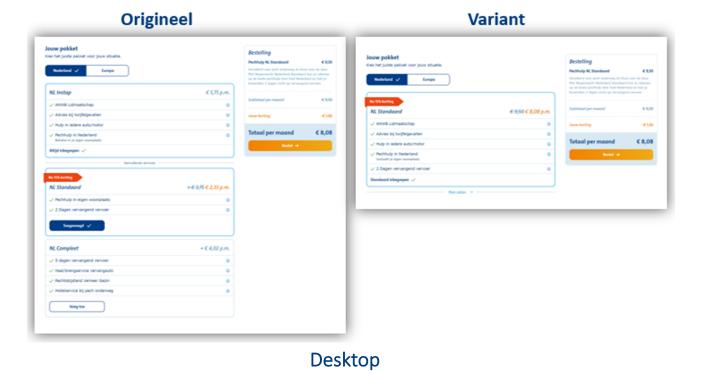

- Why not start from Standaard?
- Why do we give Instap so much attention, while we rather sell Standaard?
- Why would we show everything, while we only show Standaard on mobile now?

Third experiment

Mobile

Third experiment

Uplift in number of transactions

- On mobile; +8,4%
- No uplift on desktop

Small switch in type of packages

More Standaard

Not only a successful new application, but even a big win!

And still experimenting.

More than just a solid foundation

Easier proces – user testing

- Struggles removed to work towards our future-vision
 Unlift in conversion
